Introduction

This Religious Education Curriculum Framework describes learning and teaching in Religious Education for Catholic primary and secondary schools in the Archdiocese of Melbourne. The framework sits within the context of the Education Framework for the Archdiocese of Melbourne, Horizons of Hope. The ecclesial mission of the Catholic school is the foundation for Religious Education and the core work of Catholic educators:

Catholic schools were founded to proclaim Jesus’ message of God’s love for all. Our Catholic faith calls us to embrace the contemporary world with a Catholic imagination, and a particular hope-filled view of the human person and all of creation. Catholic educators invite students to make sense of their world and their lives within a faith community that is faithful to the mission of Jesus (Horizons of Hope: Context 2016, p. 9).

This Religious Education Curriculum Framework draws from and incorporates the teachings and principles espoused in the Catechism of the Catholic Church, along with the teachings of Vatican II and post-conciliar documents. In particular the many rich developments in Religious Education over recent years are represented and encompassed. The framework seeks to address the recommendations from the findings of the Enhancing Catholic School Identity Project (Pollefeyt & Bouwens 2014). The findings identify three critical challenges for schools to address through Religious Education:

- opening up a more explicit dialogue between Catholic faith and the diverse cultures and lives of students
- finding new ways to express the Gospel as alive and authentic
- engaging in rich and meaningful experiences of prayer.

In the language of the Enhancing Catholic School Identity Project, these challenges are named as a need to shift from relativism to post-critical belief; from a colourful school to a dialogue school; from Christian values education to recontextualisation.

The framework introduces pedagogy of encounter, which addresses these challenges. The pedagogy is based on the principles of the hermeneutic communicative model of Pollefeyt and Lombaerts (2011). The pedagogy of encounter places students’ lives and questions at the centre of the learning, with dialogue as both the process and the valued outcome of Religious Education. In authentic dialogue, learners are taken into new understandings and are joined more closely with their dialogue partners – they are ‘transformed into a communion in which we do not remain what we were’ (Gadamer 1989, p. 379).

The framework has been developed in consultation and collaboration with schools. It is for you, as leaders and teachers, as you design learning that brings the richness of Catholic tradition into dialogue with the world of the students and contemporary culture. It is designed to be interactive and practical and to promote your ongoing professional learning and faith formation. Throughout, discussion questions invite you into professional dialogue and offer opportunities for discernment, prayer and further learning about the nature and challenges of faith, the role of Religious Education and your own aspirations and responsibilities in a Catholic school. The framework will also be of interest to parents and to those in parishes involved in the Religious Education of young children and adolescents.
The framework supports the full flourishing of all learners as spiritual and religious, physical and cognitive, social and emotional beings through Religious Education. It proposes a learning structure comprised of: three strands of learning; five content areas; and the learning progression including achievement standards. The three strands are:

- Knowledge and Understanding, i.e. seeking truth
- Reasoning and Responding, i.e. making meaning
- Personal and Communal Engagement, i.e. living story.

These three strands offer lenses through which the learning descriptors and achievement standards are presented.

The five content areas work together to build a network of understanding of the Catholic Church and its traditions and have their origins in the To Know, Worship and Love student texts:

- Scripture and Jesus
- Church and Community
- God, Religion and Life
- Sacrament, Prayer and Liturgy
- Morality and Justice.

The achievement standards describe the quality of learning in the three strands through the elements of dialogue: the nuance of explanation, the openness of interpretation and the depth of self-reflection leading to transformation. These elements, enacted in a pedagogy of encounter, draw the focus constantly back to dialogue. The Religious Education Curriculum Framework highlights assessment as a means of uncovering the learner’s story through dialogue, mapping their continuous growth through the achievement standards.

Catholic Education Melbourne offers this document as an important resource and guide in designing authentic dialogical Religious Education that promotes the full flourishing of all learners. Each school and each parish in the Archdiocese of Melbourne is responsible for ensuring that the principles and approaches of Religious Education recommended in this framework are reflected in their curriculum.
Religious Education in a Catholic School

What is Religious Education?
Religion is an essential characteristic of many societies and religious knowledge is fundamental to an understanding of self, others, the world and God. Religious Education promotes an understanding of story, ethics, ritual and symbol that have shaped humanity from the earliest times. It helps students appreciate the role of prayer, beliefs, sacraments and sacred texts in people’s lives.

In a Catholic school, Religious Education attends to the spiritual development of each person, acknowledging and celebrating the Spirit at work, inviting relationship with God and a Christ-like stance towards others. It is at the same time a disciplined process of ‘faith seeking understanding’, where the questions of God, beliefs and life are articulated and explored within the Catholic Tradition to develop students’ faith lives and stimulate a search for meaning and truth. Religious Education is grounded in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, providing opportunities to encounter the living Christ through the holiness and brokenness of the individuals and communities we relate to.

Religious Education invites students to appreciate the value of Catholic faith and to respect the other faiths and worldviews that permeate Australia’s diverse society. This knowledge and understanding are essential for a rich spiritual life and for informed and committed participation in a global Church, working for the common good.

Religious Education in a Catholic school aims to develop:
- appreciation and deep understanding of the richness of the Catholic Tradition
- religious self-understanding and spiritual awareness
- openness to religious questions and to a religious interpretation of the world
- awareness of the diversity of voices in society and within the school
- discernment and participation informed by the Catholic Tradition.

How is Religious Education enacted in a Catholic school?
As pastors, principals, Religious Education leaders and teachers you exercise a very significant ministry in the Church of Melbourne under the authority of the Archbishop. Religious Education takes place throughout all learning in the Catholic school. True to the mission of the Church, learning in a Catholic school seeks the good of every person. A sense of ‘who I am’ and ‘how I can be in the world’ is nurtured in an environment of trust and intellectual inquiry, inspired by points of contact with the Catholic faith as a way of clarifying the important questions and issues that arise for teachers and students. As teachers and leaders in a Catholic school, you acknowledge a sacred aspect to teaching and learning, finding God at work in the forming and transforming power of learning. Such learning affects both teacher and student and is experienced in moments of encounter where the human spirit is turned around or led out to confront a wider horizon.

Religious Education is also a specific learning area with its own integrity. It seeks to animate learners through powerful teaching which develops a capacity to go deeper into their learning. Religious Education as a discipline is interpretative by nature, using dialogue to develop students’ self-understanding in light of the teachings of the Church and the scriptural account of the human person as made in the image of God. It stimulates students’ inner resources of hope, meaning and love, equipping them to grapple with the questions of ultimacy and opening their hearts and minds to the beauty, mystery and wonder of God revealed in creation and others. It creates a context in which each student is invited to look at life in a way that encourages appreciation and gratitude, inquiry and critical thinking, where the Catholic Tradition holds an explicit, preferred and robust place.

Discussion questions
In what ways might your learning community promote Religious Education across the curriculum? In what ways might Religious Education support students in their self-understanding or identity?

The Learner, Diversity and Religious Education

Catholic schools in Melbourne reflect a microcosm of our society, where learners from diverse cultures and beliefs are able to express a kaleidoscope of views. This diversity creates the context for learning and growth through rich dialogue that opens up deep questions of meaning, faith and identity construction.

Young people today want to hold responsibility for constructing their own beliefs. The challenge for Catholic educators is to create communities of learning which engage young people with a Catholic faith that is filled with life, hope and meaning within this diverse context. (HOH Context p. 10) (CEM, 2016a)

As educators, you are aware of the diversity of learners, who are at different stages of faith, are of different faiths, or who have no religious affiliation. Befriending this diversity and finding in it an opportunity for deep learning and faith development, the learning community offers multiple entry points into dialogue about God, faith and life in Religious Education.

As educators, you can anticipate a variety of possible outcomes that this dialogue may generate:

- Learners become more deeply rooted in their own tradition. This is understood as catechesis, where one who identifies as Catholic deepens their commitment through the witness of the faith community, and understanding of one’s own faith tradition is developed through dialogue with difference.
- Learners discover the Catholic Tradition or rediscover the Catholic Tradition. This is understood as a first proclamation, where encounter with powerful faith witnesses and deep dialogue promote engagement with a Catholic faith perspective as an attractive option.
- Learners of other religions become more authentically rooted in their own religion and partners in dialogue. This is understood as interreligious learning, where engagement with difference allows a new perspective to deepen understandings and appreciation of the particular contribution of one’s own faith and that of other faiths.
- Those of no religious affiliation may come to know of the richness of the Catholic faith and how it can impact on one’s way of seeing the world and being in the world.

The inspiration of the Holy Spirit, moving through diversity and transforming learning, underpins your work as teachers of Religious Education, sustaining your efforts and creating new possibilities in you and all learners.
Discussion questions
How can I create a learning environment that acknowledges the diversity of learners in Religious Education? How might we enter into prayer together? How might I provide for multiple entry points into conversations about God and Life? How might I provide for multiple entry points into conversations about the place of the Catholic Church and its Tradition including its theology?
Designing for Learning

Learning in a Catholic school takes place in a learning community where parents, leaders, teachers and students come together with a common vision for learning that is dynamic, transformative and hope-filled. This vision for learning is brought to life by a disposition for openness to encounter. Encounter is the space where the other reveals the presence of Christ (Horizon of Hope: Pedagogy, p.5). This space of encounter is intentionally prepared in designing for learning.

Pedagogy of Encounter

As teachers and leaders, as you come to awareness of Christ in your own and your students’ lives, a new pedagogy emerges – a pedagogy of encounter. A pedagogy of encounter acknowledges the grace of God at work in the teachings of the Church, in learning relationships, and particularly in dialogue. It asks you, as teachers, to create opportunities for dialogue that use the Catholic Tradition as a point of concrete reference with what matters most in the minds and hearts of the students and the big questions of life and culture. (Congregation for the Clergy 1997. p. 167 General Directory). A pedagogy of encounter invites a humble, listening attitude that allows students’ stories to enrich the Catholic Tradition itself. A pedagogy of encounter is an optimistic pedagogy, one that opens up horizons of hope for the future for the individual learner, the school community and the Church.

Pedagogy of encounter is relational. It requires learning relationships and classroom environments that promote student ownership of their learning, and time for respectful and substantive conversations with and between learners. In this space, learners bring an openness to being transformed by encounter with Christ and the Church through the other. As teachers and leaders, you enhance your awareness of respectful learning relationships and your intentional engagement as witness through regular personal prayer and self-reflection. A prayerful, ethical stance nurtures deeper connectedness and heightened awareness of encounter.

For all learners, a disposition of openness to encounter is vital to engagement in Religious Education:
- encounter with creation that inspires awe and wonder
- encounter with the word of God, whose Spirit moves and transforms
- encounter with a faith community that celebrates and lives out the ongoing presence of Christ in the world
- encounter with diverse views and cultures that shake and shift perspective
- encounter with the other, who calls for a response of compassion and love.

The person of the teacher is integral to the project of learning through encounter. As teachers, you ask the big questions of God and life, you listen deeply to your learners and their issues, you offer guidance and explore possibilities, you acknowledge and assent to the Spirit at work in this space and you look with hope to a future not your own. Pope Francis speaks to educators about their pivotal role in challenging and guiding learners:

My question to you, as educators, is this: Do you watch over your students, helping them to develop a critical sense, an open mind capable of caring for today’s world? A spirit capable of seeking new answers to the varied challenges that society sets before us? Are you able to encourage them not to disregard the world around them? Does our life, with its uncertainties, mysteries and questions, find a place in the university curriculum or different academic activities? Do we enable and support a constructive debate which fosters dialogue in the pursuit of a more humane world? (Pope Francis’ address to educators, students 2015)

Discussion questions
What does this quote from Pope Francis ask of you as a member of a Catholic learning community? What might this mean in your context?

Planning in Religious Education
A whole-school approach to planning for rich student learning is encouraged in Catholic schools. This collegial approach attends to teacher professional learning through dialogue and provides opportunity for deep engagement with the religious dimension of learning, encouraging teacher faith formation as an ongoing focus. Two resources have been developed to support teachers to collaboratively plan for a challenging, dialogic approach to learning and teaching in Religious Education. They are the Teacher Dialogue Tool and the Pedagogy of Encounter Diagram.

The Teacher Dialogue Tool (see Appendix 2) has been designed to support you to plan collaboratively for a relational approach in Religious Education. It features a range of questions to prompt you to think deeply about the religious issues and concepts underpinning a unit of learning before planning a learning pathway for students. It focuses on teacher dialogue as an opportunity for faith formation in a safe environment which allows you to consider your own stance and understanding and reflect on ways to initiate dialogue with students. In dialogue with your colleagues and listening to the voices of students on the issues of our times, you are supported to prepare incisive questions and design provocations to challenge thinking and deepen learning.

The Pedagogy of Encounter diagram (see overpage) illustrates one way in which you, as teachers, may design learning that invites dialogue, deep thinking and engagement with the Catholic story. The diagram offers key questions in five areas that engage the voice of the learner in deep dialogue with the Catholic Tradition:

- What do I think and sense?
- What do others think and why?
- What does the Church teach and why?
- How am I called into deeper relationship with others and God?
- What do I think now and why?

In this way, it assists you, as teachers, in:

Providing a systematic and sustained engagement with Catholic beliefs and teachings... engaging students with Catholic beliefs and values without imposing these beliefs on the students... creating spaces where the students feel free to share their own understandings and viewpoints, even as they engage with the Catholic story (Sharkey 2015, p. 29).
Pedagogy of Encounter Diagram

What do I think and sense?
Looking at the concept/subject/topic as it is experienced today and as a religious issue, using a provocation to raise questions.

What do I think about this?
What questions does this raise for me?
Why am I responding in this way?
How does this impact on who I am in the world, and as part of a Catholic learning community?

What do others think and why?
Seeking different views, including religious perspectives and interpretations, through dialogue and discussion. Going deeper into different worldviews to reveal alternative visions of, and for, the world.

What is at the heart of this topic for each perspective?
Are there hidden worldviews to uncover?
What visions for life do these perspectives reveal?
What connects with my experience or thinking? What challenges me?
What questions do I have now?

What does the Catholic Church teach and why?
Seeking the Church’s perspective and interpretations through dialogue and discussion.

What’s at the heart of this topic for the Catholic Church?
What might different members of the Church bring to this?
What visions for life does this perspective reveal?
Why does the Church put this view?
How is this different from other religious perspectives?
How might it challenge secular positions?
What connects with my experience or thinking?
What challenges my thinking?
What are my questions now?

How am I called into a deeper relationship with others and God?
Exploring a different way of knowing through experiences that open us to the sacred: praying and celebrating, using symbol and ritual and reflecting on sacred text and art.

How does this experience (of prayer, celebration, reflection, theologising about the concept) call me to be more?
How does this impact on my spirituality?
How do I explore my inner voice?
Who am I in this?
How am I becoming conscious of a higher, deeper, more valued reality, beyond the senses?

What do I think now and why?
Reflecting on the integration of knowledge, ways of being, spirituality and action, and the resulting transformation.

What do I think now?
How have I grown?
What influences my thinking and why?
What further questions does this raise for me?
What will I do differently now?

What do I think now and why?
Reflecting on the integration of knowledge, ways of being, spirituality and action, and the resulting transformation.

What do I think now?

Discussion questions
What is important to pay attention to in the student and in myself as learners? What do I intend for my students? How do life, creativity and spirituality find a place in the curriculum?
How might I recognise encounter? How might I facilitate encounter?

Religious Education and the Victorian Curriculum
When you design learning for students, you are mindful that the process of Religious Education develops transferable skills, such as the ability to:
- ask deep questions
- critically analyse and interpret sources
- consider context
- respect and explain different perspectives
- develop and substantiate interpretations
- communicate effectively.

This creates opportunities for integrating Religious Education and the Victorian Curriculum, in particular through the four capabilities in the Victorian Curriculum F–10: Critical and Creative Thinking; Ethical; Intercultural; Personal and Social.

These capabilities are a set of discrete knowledge and skills that can and should be taught explicitly in and through the learning areas, but are not fully defined by any of the learning areas or disciplines (Victorian Curriculum F–10, 2016).

In Catholic schools, this means that the capabilities should be taught in and through Religious Education, as in other learning areas. The Religious Education Curriculum Framework may in fact enrich the content of the capabilities of the Victorian Curriculum with a Catholic perspective. As teachers, you will need to discern the best way to empower learners to make the connections between the knowledge and skills of the capabilities and their application in religious learning.

Concepts can be used to develop religious understandings and make connections with other learning areas in the Victorian Curriculum, creating authentic learning. These connections serve to deepen learning in other learning areas through engagement with the rich religious understandings that are inherent in the concepts. Key concepts should be broad enough to connect with issues and big ideas that impact on students’ lives and engage them in relevant and deep questions. Such concepts include, but are not restricted to: Change, Systems, Identity and Diversity, Sustainability, Wellbeing, Relationships, Decision-making, Belonging, Right Relationship, Freedom, Responsibility, Integrity of Creation, Hope, Justice, Liberation.

Time Allocation
To ensure rigorous engagement with deep learning, time allocation for Religious Education as a discipline should be equivalent to the time given to other humanities disciplines at the school. (General Directory for Catechesis, Number 73).

While Religious Education is recognised as a cross-curricular area of learning, it is recommended that adequate attention to the Religious Education curriculum requires an allocation of no less than 2.5 hours per week in primary schools and in secondary schools from Levels 7–10.
Guidelines for Levels 11 and 12

In Levels 11 and 12, it is recommended that school-based Religious Education classes be continued for all students, regardless of their enrolment in VCE Texts & Traditions or Religion & Society, or whether they are undertaking VCAL. The structures of such classes will vary between schools; however, the time allocation should be the equivalent of one hour per week (20 hours per semester), regardless of structures chosen. Some options may include: class time using To Know, Worship and Love texts: Catholic Studies and Ethical Thinking, seminar-style sessions, on-site or off-site retreats, guest speakers and reflection, dialogue sessions, excursions and immersion-learning opportunities.

The learning descriptors for Levels 11 and 12 may serve to provide a rigorous focus for any or all of these programs. The achievement standards will enable you to make accurate judgements about the progress of student learning within the school-based Religious Education programs, to provide clear and informative feedback to students and parents about the learning.

Discussion questions

What structures are in place at your school to provide adequate time for rigorous engagement with Religious Education?
The Role of the Teacher and Leader of Religious Education in a Catholic Learning Community

Every person in a Catholic learning community – parents, leaders, teachers and students – is already deeply connected to others and to God by their very nature of being made in the image and likeness of God. This belief forms a strong basis for the relationships that are at the heart of all learning.

All of you who work in the Catholic school, as members of a learning community enlivened by the Gospel and the person of Jesus Christ, share in the responsibility for the religious dimension of school life. As teachers and leaders, you intentionally build a community of learners, bringing five vital components of your role to bear as:

- Witnesses: living with integrity, presenting the Catholic Tradition in the context of a faith community as a lived and attractive option, with a humble and supportive attitude
- Moderators: bringing students’ issues, diverse experiences and thinking into dialogue with the Catholic Tradition
- Specialists: offering deep knowledge of matters concerning Christianity, Catholicism, and other religious and philosophical traditions
- Co-inquirers: modelling an inquiry disposition, truth-seeking and passion for transformative learning
- Designers of learning: planning and implementing clear, differentiated and engaging learning paths with, and for, students that progress their learning in Religious Education in line with the achievement standards.

You participate in the learning community first and foremost as witnesses, sharing something of yourself and your faith with those you encounter.

> Above all the Gospel must be proclaimed by witness… Through this wordless witness these Christians stir up irresistible questions in the hearts of those who see how they live: Why are they like this? Why do they live in this way? What or who is it that inspires them? Why are they in our midst? Such a witness is already a silent proclamation of the Good News and a very powerful and effective one. (Evangelii Nuntiandi n.21)

As teachers and leaders in Catholic schools, you have the responsibility of bearing witness, not only to your faith, but to who you are as teachers and learners. As partners in the learning of parents, peers and students, your witness in the learning relationships encompasses all aspects of your role. You are co-inquirers, modelling lifelong learning through your own ongoing search for meaning and truth. You collegially design rich learning pathways with, and for, students in Religious Education that empower students to make meaningful connections between life and faith. You moderate student dialogue, creating spaces for diverse views to come into contact with the Catholic Tradition. As specialists, you inspire others with your deep knowledge of aspects of the Catholic Tradition and other faith traditions. These roles are supported through regular collegial dialogue, which can act as ongoing faith formation for you, as teachers and leaders, as you engage in planning and teaching.
Discussion questions
How does this description of being a witness resonate with me? What challenges me? How might being such a witness impact my teaching and learning? What is not seen, that I dare not imagine, that inspires hope in me? What might it be for my students?

Leading for Learning in Religious Education

As leaders, you create structures that support ongoing learning and professional dialogue with, and for, teachers, developing a culture that fosters deeply valued stances of Witness, Moderator, Specialist, Co-inquirer and Designer. As leaders, you understand that witness is at the heart of your role.

As Religious Education leader, you work in the broader context of collaboration with the parish priest and principal and in support of parents to nurture the religious learning and faith of the community. Your witness provides a model for all those who lead and teach and, in particular, for those who contribute to the Religious Education of all learners in the school community.

Discussion questions
How might a leader work with the learning community to foster these valued stances? What does this ask of us as a school community? What does it ask of me?
Learning Structure

In the Religious Education Curriculum Framework, the learning structure has three integrated components that work together to build the foundations for a Pedagogy of Encounter:

- Three strands of learning in Religious Education: Knowledge and Understanding – seeking truth; Reasoning and Responding – making meaning, Personal and Communal Engagement – living story
- Five content areas: Jesus and Scripture; Church and Community; God, Religion and Life; Prayer, Liturgy and Sacraments; Morality and Justice. These each have learning descriptors in levels
- Achievement standards in progression points.

The Three Strands

The three strands of learning in Religious Education grow out of an understanding of dialogue that engages each learner as a seeker of truth, a maker of meaning and one who lives out their story in and with, community. The three strands emphasise that learning in Religious Education is more than a cognitive approach to gaining Knowledge and Understanding; it also develops learners’ Reasoning and Responding, and deepens their Personal and Communal Engagement through the learning.

The three strands reflect an approach to learning in relationship where learners come to know themselves, and are valued and understood through dialogue. While the three strands are articulated as discrete aspects of learning, highlighting particular modes of learning, they are interconnected and often apply simultaneously. The three strands are the basis of the learning structure. They provide the organising schema for the learning descriptors and the achievement standards. Each strand names a key action of dialogue: explanation, interpretation and reflection integrated into life. These actions draw you back to what students are doing in the process of dialogue at the heart of a pedagogy of encounter. Whether you are engaging students in learning or whether your intention is assessment, whether you are collegially planning for learning, or moderating student learning, the three strands are central.

Knowledge and Understanding: seeking truth

A Catholic understanding that illuminates this strand is that God is discovered in the search for truth and sharing this search with others. Truth is the horizon for which we strive, the questions in each of us creating the impulse for learning. In this strand, learners are challenged to consider their intentions, since the true and the good can only be found by the heart of love. This strand develops knowledge and understanding of the key practices and beliefs of Christian communities, both past and present, in ways that connect to, and challenge, the cultural context. It builds on student questions and wonderings to create new paths to God. It intentionally pursues truth, as revealed in and through the loving action of God and in dialogue with the other.

Learning in this strand is evident when students explain their understanding of the complexity and wisdom of the Catholic faith and its elements in dialogue with multiple perspectives within and beyond the Catholic Tradition. It asks students to articulate a considered point of view. The modes of learning in this strand are those of exploring, identifying, puzzling, thinking critically, analysing, finding out, and seeking multiple perspectives.

Reasoning and Responding: making meaning

In this strand, we are invited to discover that life has purpose and meaning, even beyond self-fulfilment. It grows from the Catholic belief that Christ is the way, the truth and the life. This strand focuses on the development of particular ways of thinking and acting that arise out of grappling with what it means to be a follower of Christ. In this strand, students are challenged to consider issues and deep questions within their world and are invited to respond to the Catholic Tradition and its call to live with love, integrity and virtue. Students are empowered to be agents of their own learning, making meaning through dialogue with the other.

Learning in this strand is evident when students interpret and make meaning of their life, the world and their social context, as well as their religious tradition, responding with openness to transformation and with empathy to others. The modes of learning in this strand include listening with compassion, sifting and sorting out, questioning, wondering, responding, prioritising, making judgements, considering and empathising.

Personal and Communal Engagement: living story

Every person holds their story, which encompasses their past and looks towards the future. People are embedded in a community and make connections to other stories and the world through ‘who they are’ and ‘who they are becoming’ within that community’s search for truth and meaning. This strand draws on a Catholic understanding of the sacramental life, where the sacred is encountered in the ordinary. Learners grow into a sense of self as loved and loving, reflecting on ‘who I am’ and ‘how I am’ in relationship with others. This strand emphasises the full flourishing of the human person. It seeks to stir a sense of awe and wonder, imagination and hopefulness. It invites a sense of belonging to a faith community and commitment to the common good.

Learning in this strand is evident when students reflect on their story, deepening awareness of their feelings, questions, beliefs and worldviews in relation to others’ stories. It also asks students to apply their insights to new directions of hope for relationships and the broader world. The modes of learning in this strand include making connections, discerning, evaluating, appreciating, deepening awareness, reflecting, imagining, and applying.

Discussion questions

What might each strand reveal about our learners? How might I support all learners to grow through the three strands?

The Five Content Areas

Religious Education in a Catholic school takes seriously the mission of the Church to engage with the message of the Gospel in all its wisdom, complexity and challenge.

God’s love for each of us is unique and God picks us out, each of us, to fulfil our particular mission in the world and all of us as the Church to reach out with something to offer – the goodness of the Gospel (Archbishop Denis Hart, 2012).
The content of the learning in the framework is organised through five areas, in line with To Know, Worship and Love:

- Scripture and Jesus
- Church and Community
- God, Religion and Life
- Prayer, Liturgy and Sacrament
- Morality and Justice.

A statement for each content area encapsulates the Catholic theological understandings for that area that are explored and developed with students throughout their years of Catholic education. The content areas are interconnected and the statements note these connections. Each content area deserves equal attention across the scope of the year’s learning.

Scripture and Jesus

God freely and lovingly communicates with humanity through: the natural world; the tradition of the people of Israel; the early Christian Church; and most particularly through Jesus Christ. The scriptures of the Bible are texts of faith, mediating this interaction. Christians have a relationship with the Bible. They study it as Word of God in human words, use it in liturgy and ritual and pray with it as a means of encounter with Jesus Christ (link to Prayer, Liturgy and Sacrament). Texts of other traditions are appreciated in the light of the relationship that Christians have with the Bible (link to God, Religion and Life). Teachers facilitate dialogue at the intersection of student experiences of, and questions about, their stories and encounter with the Word. This content area grapples with the questions, “How can I know God? What does God ask of me?”

Discussion questions
How do we know God in this community? Who is Jesus for me? What does Jesus Christ tell us about God? What does God ask of us as a school community? What does this mean for students? What does this ask of me?

Church and Community

Church is the community of Jesus’ disciples, united in and through the Word of God (link to Scripture and Jesus). The Word of God continues to be encountered and lived out in the Church through: communicating beliefs; ritual celebration; ministries of service both within and outside of Church community (link to Prayer, Liturgy and Sacrament). This is the mission of the Church: to build up the common life of believers and to reach out in dialogue and shared action for the common good and the unity of the human race (see God, Religion and Life). Each generation of the Church discerns the message of the Word of God for the current context (link to Morality and Justice). Teachers facilitate dialogue at the intersection of student experiences of, and questions about, belonging, and the Church’s call to participate in the Body of Christ. This content area grapples with the questions, “Where do I belong? How can I make a difference?”

Discussion questions
Why is it important for me to belong? How do we invite all to belong in this community and the community of the Church? What empowers me to make a difference? What motivates me to make a difference? How do we ensure students are empowered and motivated to make a difference in this community? What does this mean for students? What does this ask of me?
God, Religion and Life

Human beings seek meaning, value, and happiness in life, both individually and in relationships with others. Many religious traditions propose that this search is met and responded to by a transcendent power. From this encounter with the transcendent come worldviews, rituals and ethical norms that characterise a religious tradition (link to Prayer, Liturgy and Sacrament). Christians recognise this transcendent other in the relational Trinitarian God (link to Scripture and Jesus) who is both the source and fulfilment of the human quest for unity; truth; beauty and goodness (link to Morality and Justice). Teachers facilitate dialogue at the intersection of student experiences of, and questions about, human flourishing, and the Church’s call to find meaning and purpose in God. This content area grapples with the questions, “What is life? How do I find meaning?”

Discussion questions
How do I find meaning and purpose in life? How might I encounter God in this search? How is this community a place of encounter? What does this mean for students? What does this ask of me?

Prayer, Liturgy and Sacrament

Public rituals and personal prayer practices are central to many religious traditions, which serve to express the human quest for spiritual union (link to God, Religion and Life). Catholics understand sacraments as the mediation of the extraordinary through the ordinary, of the supernatural through the natural, where the sacred is encountered in the everyday. Prayer, liturgy and sacraments are vital ways that the Church community meets, interacts with and responds to the Word of God. As the source and summit of the seven sacraments, participating in the Eucharist leads members deeper into the communal life of the Church and the mystery of Christ’s life, death and resurrection, providing nourishment for Christian living (link to Scripture and Jesus). Prayer and sacraments promote an inner personal response and a commitment to the Church’s mission to the world (link to Church and Community). Teachers facilitate dialogue at the intersection of student experiences of, and questions about, trust and mystery, and the Church’s call to nurture a trusting relationship with God through prayer. This content area grapples with the questions, “Where is God? In whom do I trust?”

Discussion questions
How do I express or experience connection to God? What or who do I trust and why? How does this community build trusting relationships with each other and with God? What does this mean for students? What does this ask of me?

Morality and Justice

In the light of the scriptures, the human person is understood to be created ‘in the image and likeness of God’ and called into a new existence through Christ (link to Jesus and Scripture). This call gives rise to the unique freedom, dignity, and responsibility of humans. It requires a process of moral discernment that holds together our nature as humans and the Christian vision of freedom and dignity in all areas of life: personal and relational integrity, economic and political participation, technological and ecological responsibility. Christians cooperate with all people to foster human flourishing, right relationship and the common good (link to God, Religion and Life). They propose to all people the vision of life in the Kingdom of God described in the gospels (link to Church and Community). Teachers facilitate dialogue at the intersection of student experiences of, and questions about, responsibility, and the Church’s call to be Christ for the other. This content area grapples with the questions, “Who calls me? How must I respond?”
Discussion questions
What call do I hear? How do I discern my response? How does this community foster right relationship with others, with creation? What does this mean for students? What does this ask of me?
Learning Progression

The learning progression describes student learning in the five content areas in levels from Foundation to Level 12. The learning progression is organised in Scope and Sequence charts to support teachers to see the progression and assist in designing learning to meet the diverse needs of students. The learning progression also includes achievement standards in progression levels from Entry level (two levels below Foundation) to post Level 12. Both the content descriptors and the achievement standards are described through the three strands which are the basis for learning in Religious Education. They provide the organising schema for the learning descriptors and the achievement standards. Each strand names a key action of dialogue: explanation, interpretation, and reflection integrated into life. These actions draw you back to what students are doing in the process of dialogue at the heart of a Pedagogy of Encounter. Whether you are engaging students in learning or whether your intention is assessment, whether you are collegially planning for learning, or moderating student learning, the three strands are central. It is advised that the following charts are read in conjunction with the document as a whole.

Learning Descriptors in the Scope and Sequence charts

Learning descriptors which summarise student learning have been written for each level in the five content areas through the three strands. They have been organised in a scope and sequence to ensure learning is appropriately ordered and that unnecessary repetition is avoided. However, learning content introduced at one level is often revisited, strengthened and extended at later levels. When planning student learning experiences, teachers seek ways to connect the learning described across content areas using student questions, issues and key concepts. Each scope and sequence chart is introduced with a statement giving an overview of the learning in the junior, middle, lower senior and upper senior years.

Overview of Foundation to Level 2

Students bring to the school a wide range of faith and spiritual experiences. These experiences are built upon in the curriculum as rich sources for further learning about God, religion and life.

Parents have a particularly important part to play in the educating community, since it is to them that the primary and natural responsibility for their children’s education belongs... The constant aim of the school therefore, should be contact and dialogue with the pupils’ families... in order to clarify with their indispensable collaboration that personalised approach which is needed for an educational project to be efficacious (The Catholic School on the Threshold of the Third Millennium, 1997).

From Foundation to Level 2, students engage with the stories about Jesus, some of the teachings of Jesus, and learn about historical figures in the history of the family of God. They explore biblical texts as story and as sources of prayer and inspiration. They reflect on and develop relationship with God and self-understanding. They engage in personal and communal prayer and liturgical experiences and develop reflective skills and dispositions of respect for the sacred. They develop heightened awareness of awe and wonder and delight in creation. They grow in appreciation of the other, understanding their impact on others and such concepts as fairness and justice.

Overview of Levels 3-6

Students extend their learning about the background and person of Jesus and his relationships with the Father, his disciples and the people he came to serve. They explore old and new testament text, learning skills of interpretation by drawing on growing knowledge of context and genre. They learn about the structures of the Church, its foundations in community and its mission of service in the world. They consider the actions of God in the world and begin to explore ways other religious traditions celebrate this. They learn about and may receive the sacraments of Penance, Eucharist and Confirmation, as well as learning about the seven sacraments and their significance for today. They engage with the liturgical celebrations of the church year and the life of the faith community, past and present, exploring ways they can participate in and contribute to the church. They continue to develop their personal prayer life, spirituality and appreciation for the sacred. Students develop their understanding of Catholic teaching on the dignity of the human person and its implications for their choices personally and in community, learning to build just and compassionate relationships based on love and respect for self and others.

Overview of Levels 7-10

Students develop their interpretative skills, considering literary structures of scripture passages and the impact of settings, styles and viewpoints of authors and audience in both old and new testaments. They develop appreciation of the Word as means of encounter with Jesus Christ. They explore the history of the Church, and the development of its distinctive ideas, teachings and practices, as well as the charisms of the saints. They extend their knowledge of religious diversity, identifying the particularity of the Catholic Tradition in the Australian context. They expand their experiences of personal and communal prayer and the variety of spiritual devotions in both the Catholic and other traditions, including appreciation of religious art and music throughout history. They focus on deepening understanding of Eucharist and its centrality to the Catholic Tradition. They deepen understanding of Catholic social teaching and its application to both personal and global issues, including sexuality, equity and ecology, developing skills of discernment, which reflect self-respect and respect for the other.

Overview of Levels 11-12

Students consider the person of Jesus and his impact on the world and on their lives. They identify the influence of the Bible and other sacred texts on the lives of believers and continue to appreciate the relationship Christians have with the Bible. They reflect on their own role in, and commitment to, the local and global Church or other faith traditions. They consider the diversity of religious traditions and their impact on Australian society. They explore their spirituality and the role of various forms of prayer and contemplation in their life. They continue to develop moral maturity and the skills of dealing with complexity and ambiguity in both personal and political decisions, such as sexuality, equity and ecology.

Assessment in Religious Education

Assessment in a Catholic school provides information about where a student is in their learning and opens up a conversation about possibilities for new learning.

In a Catholic school, assessment engages students, teachers and families in an authentic relationship about learning. This forms the basis for learning partnerships that enable the full flourishing of every student across all learning domains. When the learning community is open to encounter, and the importance of relationships is valued, assessment becomes more than just results (Horizons of Hope, 2016).

Assessment in Religious Education focuses on the ongoing and continuous growth in a student’s ability to engage in the deep dialogue between the Catholic tradition, the issues of the day and students’ self-understanding. A student’s personal faith is not the subject of assessment or reporting in Religious Education. As teachers, you design for learning that makes knowledge, skills and dispositions explicit and it is this which is able to be assessed in Religious Education. Effective assessment design ensures you consider a variety of ways to gather evidence of student growth. Student conversations, learning journals, observations or standardised tests all provide opportunities to gather rich evidence. You employ formative assessment practices grounded in respectful teacher-student relationships and supported by strategies including conferencing, self-assessment, peer assessment, self-reflection, and providing specific feedback in the context of learning. The achievement standards provide a well-rounded understanding of the progression of learning for Religious Education and can assist you in learning conversations with students to ensure progress is made over time.

Discussion questions
In your learning design, what opportunities are students offered to demonstrate their learning in Religious Education? What do you pay attention to? How do you encourage growth?

Achievement Standards

In the Religious Education curriculum framework, the achievement standards identify valued student learning in Religious Education that is observable. The achievement standards are written independently of the content areas, describing student progress on a learning continuum that is continuous from Entry level (two levels below Foundation) to post Level 12. The standards are written in terms of the three strands of learning, highlighting the quality of demonstrations of understanding:

- the level of sophistication in explanation
- the degree of insight and empathy in interpretation
- the depth of self-knowledge in reflection and the ability to integrate reflections.

By highlighting the quality of learning in all three strands, the standards draw attention to, and reinforce, the actions of dialogue in a pedagogy of encounter. The standards inform your judgement about student learning and can help you make decisions that will benefit students’ learning progress. They can be used to provide students with descriptive feedback that guides their efforts towards improvement. By inviting you, as teachers, to integrate all three strands in the learning and teaching process, both learning and assessment will attend to the full flourishing of the learner.
Diversity of learners

The Religious Education Curriculum Framework has been developed to ensure that the content and achievement standards enable continuous learning for all students including:

- Students with disabilities
- Students who have English as an additional language
- Gifted and talented students

Students with disabilities

Religious Education focuses on including all students in the richness of the faith tradition. Inclusion is respectful compassion and recognition of our shared fragility in communion with one another. It focuses on what students with disabilities can teach us about strength and acceptance. It is important to involve families, parish staff and specialist support when considering Sacramental preparation for students with disabilities. Realistic provisions must be made for persons with disabilities to participate fully in the Eucharist and other liturgical celebrations.

The aims of the Religious Education Curriculum Framework are the same for all students. The Framework offers flexibility for you to design learning for all students in ways that provide rigorous relevant and engaging learning and assessment opportunities for students with disabilities.

Most students with disabilities can engage in Religious Education provided the necessary adjustments are made to the complexity of the content and to the means through which students demonstrate their knowledge, skills and understandings.

For a small percentage of students with disabilities, their learning will be well below the Foundation achievement level. Most of these students have a significant intellectual disability. The Entry level and pre-Foundation level achievement standards focus on progressing students from a pre-intentional to intentional engagement in learning. Entry level and Pre-Foundation level are integrated directly into the learning progression, describing ways students may move toward the learning described at Foundation level. As teachers, you are able to map student progress regardless of age or year level and to identify ways of progressing learning using the achievement standards as a learning continuum.

Students with English as an additional language

Many students in Melbourne schools are learners of English as an additional language (EAL). For some, school is the only place they use English. It is important to ensure that all students, regardless of their language have the opportunity to participate fully in liturgy and sacraments and have access to Scripture in meaningful ways.

The aims of the Religious Education Curriculum Framework are the same for all students, however, EAL learners require additional time and support, along with informed teaching that explicitly addresses their language needs, and assessments that take into account their developing language proficiency.
Gifted and talented students

The Religious Education achievement standards describe a learning continuum that enables you, as teachers, to identify and progress the learning of students who are able to work well above the nominally age expected level of achievement.

Moderation Processes

Moderation in Religious Education informs planning and teaching, as well as assessment and reporting. It is a process used to create consistent and valid judgements of student achievement in relation to the achievement standards in the local school context. Moderation is also a form of professional learning, where you as teachers, can share ideas about what you are noticing about student learning, develop familiarity with the standards and be informed about what constitutes evidence of learning progress. You use your observations and evidence of student learning to differentiate between student performances for reporting and also identify ways to progress each student’s learning in Religious Education. It is critical for you to collegially moderate examples of student learning to make informed judgements about appropriate placement in relation to the achievement standards. Your professional judgement accurately reflects where the student lies on the continuum at the time of evaluating, which can be at any stage of the year. The focus is centred on growth and consistent progression through the continuum.

Glossary

Catholic identity  The way in which the Gospel of Jesus is given living expression in each school community. A contemporary Catholic identity develops from the encounter between faith, life and culture and the celebration of all three in ritual.

Catholic imagination  A viewpoint that God is present in the whole of creation and in human beings, each of which are channels and sources of God’s grace.

Catholic Tradition  The lived practice of Catholics down through each generation, responding to Christ’s invitation, under the impulse of the Holy Spirit, making the Gospel come alive in unfolding human history. It includes prayer, liturgy and the celebration of the Eucharist, preaching, teaching and the love of God and neighbour as expressed in dedicated service to others.

Dialogue  Requires that we offer ourselves in ways that can be grasped and received by the people with whom we are talking. It is not merely a matter of putting oneself forward and successfully asserting one’s own point of view, but being transformed into a communion in which we do not remain what we were.

Discernment  A process for decision-making that recognises God’s will in our lives and aligning our choices accordingly.

 Encounter  A relational, dialogical experience where each other reveals the presence of Christ. Encounter requires openness to transformation, a search for truth, and a willingness to build genuine relationships with God and others.

Human dignity  A belief that human beings, created in the image and likeness of God (Genesis 1:26-27), have by their very existence an inherent worth, distinction and interconnection.

Sacramentality  An understanding that our experience of God can be mediated through the ordinary, including our culture and all of creation.

Sacraments  Ritualised moments of encounter with God, given to us by Jesus Christ. In Catholicism, there are seven such rituals that are called the sacraments. The Eucharist is the source and summit of the seven sacraments.

Sacred texts  Texts which religious traditions consider to be central to their religious practice or set of beliefs. The Bible is foundational for Catholic Christians, encompassing the sacred writings of the Old Testament (Hebrew Scriptures) and the New Testament (Christian Scriptures).

Appendix 2: Teacher Dialogue Tool

Part A

Essential Team Dialogue Prior to Planning

Purpose: Through this protocol, teachers attend to their own religious formation and professional development in dialogue. They explore possibilities in the proposed learning for students as they deepen their own understanding of concepts underpinning a unit, prior to planning a unit of learning.

Process: In the planning team, a facilitator is selected and a scribe.

The role of the facilitator is to listen closely and to guide the dialogue, selecting from the questions below, as appropriate, to probe teacher thinking about the concepts underpinning the unit of work proposed.

The role of the scribe is to take pertinent notes that may sum up the important insights coming from the dialogue. These will be referred to later in planning learning for students.

The role of the team is to engage in dialogue, seeking to explore the religious and deep learning possibilities within the proposed unit of work.

Timing: Part A should be given substantive time to engage teachers and leaders in deep dialogue. 45 minutes for the whole process would be regarded as minimum.

Consider Issues and Questions

What is provocative, thought provoking and religious about this unit of work?
- What are the concepts underpinning this unit of work?
- Why are these concepts important for students to grapple with?
- What is an issue here?
- What is at stake?
- Why does this subject evoke so much emotion? Why does the issue affect people?
- What kind of social debates and positions exist with regard to this issue?
- What assumptions are involved here? What are the conflicting principles concerning this issue?
- What questions can I ask in relation to the answers that are usually given on this subject?

In what ways is the religious dimension relevant and connected to the issue?
- How does faith interact here?
- How does this theme appear in the media, youth culture and common sense of people?
- What is taboo in this issue?
- What human images, world views or images of God could play a role here?
- How would I put in words my own position as a believing Religious Education teacher?
- Is truth a matter of concern within this issue?
- How is a deeper dimension of reality evident here?

Consider my Learners

How will we ensure students engage with the unit of work?
- What experiences of strangeness, wonder, even alienation, will students be confronted with to capture their attention, their emotions and spark interest or curiosity?
What opportunities will be offered for students to make new connections with their own identity and self-understanding?
What opportunities will be provided for students to put their own philosophical and/or religious position?
How will students encounter a tradition that is not necessarily theirs?

What questions will we use to locate learners’ current understanding?

- What do you think about this?
- How have you experienced...?
- What do you assume to be true about...?

Part B

Designing Learning for Encounter

Purpose: Through this protocol, teachers will design learning experiences for students and consider possibilities for learning that will progress student learning in line with achievement standards, tapping into student questions and identifying gaps in their learning.

Process: Teachers bring students’ questions and assumptions to the session and the notes from the previous dialogue session. They elect a facilitator and a scribe.

The role of the scribe is to take pertinent notes that may sum up the important insights coming from the dialogue. These will be referred to later in planning learning for students.

The role of the team is to engage in dialogue, seeking to explore the religious and deep learning possibilities within the proposed unit of work.

Timing: Part B should be given substantive time to engage teachers and leaders in deep dialogue. 45 minutes for the whole process would be regarded as minimum.

Consider Pedagogical Choices

What are our students telling us about this concept?
- What do they know/wonder about this concept?
- What are the gaps in their understanding? How do we know?

What elements of the Catholic Tradition will take students to the heart of the learning?
- How do the theological underpinnings of the Religious Education curriculum documents help identify key elements of the Catholic Tradition connected to this issue?
- What other sources might we investigate to identify key elements?
- How will we invite students to engage with scripture, liturgy, prayer, Church teaching, art, music, sacramental experiences?

How will we create an environment for dialogue with, and between, learners?
How will we enable learners to:
- deepen understanding and focus on encounter?
- search for truth and seek to make progress?
- use both verbal and nonverbal communication?
- leave room for difference that is not aimed at a rapid or shallow agreement?
- disentangle hermeneutical knots/junctions, issues?
- engage trust and build trusting relationships?
- give room to personal witness, challenge and silence?
- allow the Catholic Tradition to speak for itself without sermonising?
What opportunity will we give students to reflect on their spiritual growth in dialogue with the Catholic Tradition?

Which of the following questions might engage learners in deeper dialogue with the Catholic Tradition?

- How does this element (this text, this image, this testimony, this experience etc.) align/not align with my religious or philosophical understanding?
- How would you characterise the world view and relevance of this element?
- Why is/isn’t this element entitled to appreciation?
- Can you imagine that other people would respond to this element from a different perspective?
- How would I see this element differently today, compared to a few months ago?
- How does this element address me?
- Does this element result in more faith, hope and love in my life, that of others, and that of the local and global community?

Consider Evidence of Learning

How can the learning come together and be made visible?

Which of the following might we use to enable students to highlight insights into their learning?

- What differences or connections have we discovered within the issue?
- Which aspects of the dialogue are worthwhile paying more attention to?
- What was at stake here?
- Which aspects/topics were not clarified in the dialogue?
- Which new perspective has the dialogue given concerning tradition, culture or biography?
- How does this conversation relate to conversations in other classes?
- What will you not likely forget out of this dialogue?
- Why is this element relevant?
- How does this connect with previous learning?
- How do these new insights align with the whole of our understanding of life and the Christian tradition?
- How might we follow up some ideas from this learning?
- How is your world view growing/Changing?

What opportunities exist in this unit of work to identify the learning?

- What opportunities do the achievement standards offer for both learning and assessing?
- What opportunities do the achievement standards offer for peer assessment and feedback to students about future learning in Religious Education?

Resources

The use of protocols as found in Making Thinking Visible (Ron Ritchhart 2011) and on the HARVARD Project zero website will assist teachers to identify processes to enable dialogical learning.

The Religious Education Curriculum Framework has background information that will assist learning communities in engaging with a pedagogy of encounter. The Religious Education Curriculum Framework also outlines content from Foundation to Level 12 and achievement standards across all levels of schooling.

The Catholic Catechism or the Catechism for Youth (YouCat) is a key resource for teacher information and further learning.

RESOurce is a website that houses many teacher resources and has links to To Know, Worship and Love student texts online and additional resources.
